

Kensington HPP Energy's Official Manufacturer's Certificate

Kensington HPP Windows Replacement Window Tax Credit Certification

The Energy efficient home improvement credit has been extended through December 31, 2022. This energy efficient home credit is only available to those taxpayers who did not claim more than the $500 lifetime cap (the lifetime cap is $200 for windows) of home energy tax credits in an earlier year.

To claim this energy credit on your return, you must have purchased the qualified improvements and placed them into service during the appropriate Tax Year. To qualify for the credit, the energy-saving improvements must have been made on an existing home (not a new construction) which was your primary residence, and which you owned. The home must also be located in the United States.

This document along with the window receipt showing that you purchased one of the models noted herein acts as the manufacturers certification that the windows purchased meet the guidelines required for this energy credit. IRS Form 5695 details the requirement as Energy Star 6.0, which each of our products meets or exceeds.

Kensington HPP Energy certifies that all the Kensington HPP, which includes Genesis, Ascent and Meridian (Quantum), Window products provided with any of our glass packages, other than clear glass, meets Energy Star 6.0 and are therefore eligible for The Energy efficient home improvement credit as specified in IRS.gov/Form5695.
